The family residence, 802 Nineteenth Street, decorated with green foliage and pink-blossomed flowers, was thronged during the reception with people from all social circles of the city, old resident families being largely represented. Nicholson, Mr. John McGee Waggoner, Mr. Charles M. Jones, and Mr. Penrose Smith.

The bride, attended by her relative and guardian, Mrs. Antoinette R. Perlie, who gave her hand in marriage, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. H. E. Perlie, Prof. Sautman, who presided at the organ, played "Oh, Promise Me" softly during the marriage service. The bride wore a handsome gown of ivory satin, with a train of white tulle and pearls. Her long tulle veil was held in place by the conventional orange blossoms. In place of flowers she carried a beautiful prayer book, the gift of the groom, from which the service was read. It was bound in white leather with silver-tipped corners and surmounted by a gold cross. In the front of the prayer book leaves were specially arranged for filling in the marriage certificate and the signing of the witnesses. Mrs. Perlie's gown was of cream satin brocade, in which was woven a tiny spray of pink. It was trimmed in heavy applique and silver spangles.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Perlie, 824 Fourteenth Street, where the bride and groom received congratulations, standing in the bay window, which was attractively decorated with foliage plants.

The presents were numerous and beautiful, conspicuous among them being considerable silverware.

THE HARVARD CLUB BANQUET.

Graduates of the University Toast Their Alma Mater.

Old men and young, representing almost three-quarters of a century of the history of Harvard College and Harvard University, assembled in the banquet hall of the Shoreham last night and partook of the annual feast given by the Harvard Club. The members of the club and their guests assembled in the hall at 7 o'clock, where they were met by the club members and marched into the banquet hall according to the classes they represent. The hall was decorated in Harvard crimson and gold, and the tables were covered with red cloth. The menu was a most excellent one, and the evening was made by John W. Taylor, a resident of San Francisco, who had just returned to this country after a long sojourn in the Philippine Islands. He gave an interesting and graphic account of the conditions existing there and the manners and customs of the people. He said he believed that the United States was not gaining so much in the acquisition of the Philippines as he was the Philippines. They were to be given a taste of what personal liberty is, he said, and to them this would be unusual. He characterized Aguinaldo and his band as a gang of cutthroats who had sold their country once and would do it again if the opportunity offered. As soon as this man and his followers were suppressed the country would be developed into one of the richest possessions of this nation.

Speeches were also made by George B. Leighton, of St. Louis, Representative Henry S. Boutell, of Chicago, Prof. Strobel, of Harvard University, and Hon. J. J. Murray, Minister from Japan, who said that his country has always been a friend of the United States and that in the opening of new fields of activity in the Far East, this country would have no friend sincerer than his own.

Mr. Brown, of Harvard University, Commissioner Alfred Hartwell, of Hawaii, and F. W. Hackett also spoke.

CUBA AND PORTO RICO.

Population of the Islands as Disclosed by the Census.

Gen. Joseph P. Sanger, Supervisor of the Census taken in Cuba and Porto Rico, has submitted a preliminary report of the census of the two islands to Secretary Root. The report shows that Cuba has lost 58,842 of its inhabitants since 1887, and that the population of Porto Rico has increased 159,979 in the same time.

The population of Cuba, as shown by the preliminary enumeration, is 1,972,481, and in 1887 it was 1,632,587. The population of Porto Rico, shown by the recent census, is 967,679, and in 1887 it was 806,796.

The population by provinces in Cuba in 1887 and 1887, the first figures being those of 1887 and the second 1887, is as follows: Pinar del Rio, 173,082 and 225,917; Havana, 424,811 and 494,928; Matanzas, 292,462 and 328,275; Santa Clara, 236,241 and 254,122; Porto Principe, 88,237 and 67,789; Santiago, 227,716 and 272,270.

A census of Cuba taken in 1861 showed 1,266,529, making an increase in 1887 of 235,157. If the population had continued increasing in the same ratio the population in 1889 would have been 1,737,625.
